Comment: I have been on a voucher supportive services HAP for a few years now. I am trying to go back to school and it seems to me that the Supportive Services housing locations being buildt are too often little more than thin veils for hotels. One-room studio type "homes" for single residency.

This is pretty bad. They are heavens for drug use and are not in keeping with the goals.

The other option (if one could call it that) is to try and find housing on the open market. Then every year remain in fear of a rent increase.

When a person is moving towards healing, why is there no oppurtunity for co-operative ownership. I would love to have a place to live that is secure and where I could grow a garden, go to school and receive MEANINGFUL supportive services.
