Dear Mr. Pollard:

The New Progressive Alliance urges the Federal Housing Finance Agency (FHFA) to immediately drop its opposition to PACE. Investments as PACE (Property Assessed Clean Energy) increase the value of a home, mean more jobs, and increase the ability of a homeowner to pay through less utility bills. This is in addition to a cleaner environment and less global warming for the next generation. There is no evidence to contradict this and much to support it.

Out of approximately 37,000 special assessment programs across the United States, apparently the only one FHFA is going out of its way to invalidate an entire home loan is this one concerning clean energy and energy efficiency. There is no factual basis to support this.

Finally, the Federal Housing Finance Administration (FHFA) is interfering in a homeowners right to invest in energy efficiency and renewable energy.

Please take the right action for homeowners, our environment, our economy, and our country.

Sincerely,

Ed and Harriet Griffith
