Subject: RIN 2590-AA53 Mortgage Assets Affected by PACE Programs and EIS Scoping Comments

Dear Mr. Pollard,

Property Assessed Clean Energy (PACE) programs are an important and innovative tool to increase the adoption of residential clean energy technologies, save consumers money, reduce pollution, create jobs, and make the nation more energy independent. I disagree with FHFA's 2010 decision that PACE programs create too much risk, making homes with PACE assessments unworthy of financing through FHFA loans.

Investing in energy efficiency and renewable energy technologies in homes is the smartest way to reduce our country's dependence on fossil fuels, reduce pollution, improve public health and curb climate change. These innovative PACE programs address the barriers that often stop homeowners from making these improvements and keeps the investment with the home, allowing future owners to both take the responsibility for the investment and reap the benefits. Also, clean energy investments can be among the most profitable that one can make to a home. The Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory found that the presence of a solar system on a home provides a significant premium at resale.

I strongly urge FHFA to drop its opposition to residential PACE programs.

This is America not a poor, unfortunate third world country.
Americans should always have a choice.
Isn't that what living in America is all about?

I'm not currently a homeowner, but when I do buy a house, I'd like to have the opportunity to make it as environmentally responsible as I can - to benefit my family, my community, and the earth. Thank you for doing everything you can to support residential energy independence.

Less dependence on foreign oil, less pollution from fossil fuels, less chance of more nuclear waste produced....all good reasons to help homeowners embrace clean energy!

Our solar industry is collapsing and the US desperately needs to create the jobs of the future now, not to mention arrest the consequences of ever increasing amounts of carbon dioxide in our atmosphere and its increasingly devastating effects on agriculture and fisheries. The Property Assessed Clean Energy Act was a program that can usefully help us to address these issues. It needs to be reinstated and dramatically expanded before the US loses all competitiveness in the solar energy industry and before climate catastrophe becomes unavoidable.

I work at an environmental and energy advocacy organization and am familiar with PACE financing. Just this morning, I had a family member in another state asking me how they could get financing assistance to install solar PV. PACE would be ideal for their situation, but it has not been available in their area since the FHFA's recommendation. I urge the FHFA to bring back PACE financing. It will reduce greenhouse gas emissions from the building sector, spur job growth in clean energy businesses, and help families who want to save money while doing the right thing for the planet.

Making homes more sustainable lessens our dependency on oil and helps to stabilize our own economy. In times like these, we need to do everything we can to support and stabilize ourselves. And yet, if people are having to weigh making these sustainable changes against, say, having the money to fix their car or pay for a medical emergency. PACE gives them the chance to do something that, in time, will positively affect our entire country.

concerned citizens & friends to be aware of a grave issue, Nuclear Power Plants. My husband & I attended a meeting in April 2011 about the 36 year old Vermont Yankee Nuclear Reactor in Rutland Vermont, traveling 150 miles to educate ourselves on Nuclear Power. Did you know the cooling tower collapsed back in 2007? The National Academy of Sciences recognized the existence of design as being the most vulnerable to terrorist attack or accident, due to the placement of its fuel pool 7 stories above ground, under a thin metal roof & outside of containment. If for example one small airplane went headfirst into the power plant's spent fuel pool, 25,000 square miles could become uninhabitable

PACE Clean Energy Program. I believe that we need a multi solution to our nation's need for clean energy. Helping families to be part of the solution by bringing solar energy to their homes can be part of a decentralized approach to using every available resource to produce energy. The sun's energy is basis of enrgy production here on Earth and we ought to be using it as a first source where possible. Many families would like to be part of the clean energy solution, but find the cost of puttting putting up solar panels or putting new windows and doors out of their price range. Some of us for example, would be thrilled to have solar panels on our garages to help fuel electric cars to help lessen our nation's dependence on
